Advanced Diploma in Human Resource Management

Programme Description

The Advanced Diploma in Human Resource Management is a comprehensive online programme designed to deepen students' expertise in human resource and labour relations management. Core modules, such as Advanced Human Resource Management and Research Methodology, equip students with strategic knowledge in personnel management and essential research skills. Students may specialise through elective streams, choosing from Human Resource Development, Human Resource Management, or Labour Relations. Each stream provides targeted skills: from managing HR development processes and aligning policies with the National Skills Development Strategy to handling complex labour relations and collective bargaining challenges. This qualification prepares graduates for specialist careers in HR, enabling them to drive organisational effectiveness through advanced knowledge and practical application of HR principles and strategies.

You will learn

- Strategies for effective talent acquisition.
- Performance management and employee development techniques.
- Labour law and employment relations.
- Organisational change management strategies.
- Conflict resolution and workplace mediation techniques.
