Postgraduate Diploma in Human Resource Management

Programme Description

The Postgraduate Diploma in Human Resource Management provides advanced essential skills to managers in government and the private sector in the field of human resources. The programme is industry-relevant and uses current technologies and practices within a wider subject area to produce graduates who are equipped to practise in a human resource environment. We will equip you in the field to perform at specialist and managerial levels within multi-disciplinary human resource environments. You will have the opportunity to build competencies such as the application of different research-related skills, and the application of strategic management principles as these relate to the human resource environment and the issues pertaining to social responsibility, ethical and legal matters, and workplace diversity.

You will learn

- Strategic management principles in HR contexts.
- Talent management and employee engagement techniques.
- Ethical, legal, and social responsibility issues in HR.
- Effective workplace diversity management.
- Performance management and conflict resolution strategies.
- Research methods to enhance HR practices.
